Practice Based Learning and Improvement

Elective objectives are determined to conform with the electives residents' have chosen. If residents choose to do a series in a single area of study, (ie: Integrative health, Women's health, Sports medicine) it is expected that the goals will be more comprehensive with each successive elective rotation, and be commensurate with their level of training. Supervising faculty may assign a project to be completed in order to assess the resident's skills and progress in passing the rotation.
